BEVERLY MORGAN RESIGNS FROM ACCO

After many years as the founder and artistic director of ACCO, A Chorus Celebrating Women, Beverly Morgan has resigned.

In keeping with the mission of ACCO, she and the chorus have brought the music of women to increased audiences in the Lehigh Valley. Through concerts, volunteerism, and educational programs, ACCO has been a unique chorus with 2 equally strong commitments; one to musical excellence and the other to feminism. Beverly is very proud to have founded a chorus built on these commitments.

Beverly Morgan's work with community singers continues. She is rehearsing the Steel Choir, which she founded for the Touchstone Theatre Steel Festival in 1999, for a CD which will be released in September. Beverly believes the recording will add an important piece of musical history to the story of Bethlehem Steel, its workers and neighborhoods. Look for future announcements of this special project in future VFPs.

RAGS TO RICHES TAKE THE FIRST STEP

by Denise McKelvey

CO-PARENTING

Do you remember that dating article I wrote some months back? Well, skipping over all the gory details (This is a parenting column, not a dating column!) the end result hastened out rather nicely. A very lovely lady and her teenage daughter have joined forces with my two kids and me. It is exciting and challenging everyday as we blend our two families together. But, since we are reasonable, intelligent, giving, loving, and romantic folks, we must also have our differences. It's simply part of the package.

Now, the kids haven't had much trouble adjusting at all. They've adapted well and have grown to love each other. Not like real brothers and sisters. Nope. They actually get along better than if they had grown up together. Perhaps it's the age difference, perhaps it's how we prepared them, perhaps they're extraordinarily resilient, or mature. Perhaps they just simply like each other. Whatever it is, they have found a way to make it work for themselves. I'd like to take credit for it, but, frankly, I can't figure out how.

So where is the challenge? It's with the parenting. We are both strong, involved, and protective mothers. As with any blended family, gay or straight, parenting styles will differ. Particularly with parents who have gotten used to doing the whole job, by themselves, for an extended period of time.

I got spoiled and used to having my way all the time. Sure, it was a lot of work, but who was there to contradict my style? Now the dynamics are different. I have to (gulp) compromise! And, I have my parental short comings pointed out to me! (Lovingly, of course, but it's still hard to take.) Plus, control freak that I am, I don't miss an opportunity to point out someone else's mistakes!

Also, while I have 2 young kids, I need to learn how to live with a teenager. And my partner has to revisit the preschool years that she thought she'd left behind forever. So, naturally, there is conflict and growing pains.

Then we look at all of our kids playing together, or reading to each other. We see the ease with which they love, and we learn from them. It's as if they are saying to us, "It's not so hard! Let all of that adult stuff go, and come and play!" And, smart parents that we are, we do.

INTEGRITY BETHLEHEM CHANGES FORMAT

On January 18 the members of Integrity met to discuss a change of format for the Bethlehem Chapter, which has been in existence for over 10 years. Integrity is the organization for GLBT Episcopalians (both lay and clergy) and their friends and families.

When the chapter first started, a need to meet once a month to share scriptures and the Holy Eucharist in a "safe" environment was clear. Participants felt both welcomed and affirmed by their congregation. Clergy support contributed to this feeling.

But recent low attendance has caused the Chapter to consider how better to meet the needs of the membership. In order to retain a charter from National Integrity, a chapter must meet once a year with its Diocesan Bishop and have a presence at the Diocesan Convention. After discussion it was decided that the Chapter would have quarterly gatherings at homes and other venues around the Diocese. The emphasis would be more on fellowship. The Bishop will be explicitly invited to one gathering a year.

To become a member and receive a quarterly magazine from National Integrity, log onto: integrityusa.org. National yearly dues are $35/year with $5 sent to the local chapter. To participate as a local member call 610-758-8642 or E-mail: ~integritybeth@mindspring.com.

Dear Denise, My partner and I have purchased a home. It is titled in joint tenancy with right of survivorship. Do you have any further suggestions for our situation? Signed, Happy New Homeowners

Dear HNH, Congratulations on your new purchase!! I am sure you were able to acquire an excellent interest rate. Joint Tenancy With Right of Survivorship, ensures that the house will pass to each other if one of you should pass away. If one joint tenant dies then the remaining joint tenant automatically owns the entire property, without the necessity of probate court proceedings. Even if the deceased partner has a will, title to the property transfers to the survivor, regardless of the terms of the will. However, you need to consider other aspects.

It's tough to think about breaking up a relationship when you are happily setting up a new home. But because same-sex couples cannot get legally married, we also cannot get legal (and judicial) divorces. That means that if the time ever comes for you to part, the fairness of the division of property is completely up to the both of you.

So regardless of how title is held, every unmarried couple who buys property together should have a written partnership agreement to cover the rights of each person concerning the house. It should also provide that any dispute concerning ownership be resolved by arbitration or mediation if an agreement cannot be reached.

The best time to create a partnership agreement is before closing on the house. I suggest drawing up an agreement in simple english. Even though you may have an oral agreement on who pays which expenses or who performs maintenance duties, it is best for you to put your expectations in writing. Who is responsible for what proportion of the common expenses, such as food, laundry, telephone, electric, cell phone bills, etc.?

Whatever way you choose to divide things up, it should be done in writing. The agreement will take some thought and organization. You want to review the situation on a periodic basis, like every six months or annually. Just like your relationship continues to evolve, the partnership agreement may also evolve.

Consider including such things as household furnishings purchased as a couple while living in the house. One suggestion is for each of you purchase items separately, with an understanding, if you choose in the future to go your separate ways, each item bought will remain the property of that person.

I hope you and your partner stay in love and happily partnered forever. But if things don't work out, having a partnership agreement can help avoid a bad situation.

MCC PLANS CHILD-CARE DURING SERVICE

MCCLV is dealing with a dilemma that every church would love to have. There are more and more families worshipping at MCC who have young children. "How shall MCC minister to the children?"

MCC feels it's important that children learn on their own level of God's love for them, and that their parents are able to come and enjoy worship without the distraction of tending to their little ones.

The plan is to hire a caregiver to be with the children during worship (approximately 5:45 to 7:15 PM). Volunteers from the congregation will plan and provide activities for the children, such as age appropriate songs, videos, art projects and Bible stories. Worship will also include a brief children's message and/or prayer of blessing before the children are dismissed for their own ministry program. Applicants are being sought for the paid caregiver position. Anyone interested can contact the MCCLV office at 610-954-7775. MCC is hoping to fill the position by mid-April.

GLSEN MEETING

The new Lehigh Valley Chapter of GLSEN (Gay, Lesbian and Straight Education Network) will have its first meeting on March 11, at 7:00pm, Muhlenberg College's Student Union Building, room 108 -109. Since homophobia and heterosexism undermine a healthy school climate, GLSEN works to educate teachers, students and the public about the damaging effects these forces have on youth and adults. Information: 610-867-6641, <csbarron21@aol.com>.

GLOSS GAME NIGHT

GMLV meets every 2nd Saturday of each month at 7 pm. Refreshments are served at each meeting. A one dollar donation is requested. GMLV is self-operated and maintained. It depends on the participation of each of its members to function. This event is a lot of fun and a great resource for people who enjoy, or would like to get into partner dancing. They really have something for ALL levels. For information: <fabio@early.com>.

GLBT PARTNER DANCE GROUP CONTINUES PLANNING

FROM THE BLESSING SERVICE

One of the most beautiful parts of MCC's Ecumenical Blessing Service, was the recitation by John and Jim, who have been together 43 years. Here is an except:

Jim: Who could have guessed that 43 years later we would still be sharing our thoughts and finishing...

John: each other's sentences.

Jim: In keeping with the spirit of Valentine's Day and tonight's celebration, we are pleased to share with you our personal "Ode to Love."

POINT <=> COUNTER-POINT WITH STEPHEN LIBBY & JAN ELSASSOR

POINT BY STEPHEN T. LIBBY

See Rosie. See Rosie as a stand-up comic. See Rosie host a show on MTV. See Rosie play softball in A League of Their Own. See Rosie make friends with Madonna. See Rosie play talk show hostess. See Rosie on the cover of the National Enquirer with "pa" Kelly. See Rosie profess her love for Tom Cruise. See Rosie win a couple of Emmys. See ratings start to decline after five seasons. See Rosie decide to quit her talk show. See Rosie pen an autobiography and hint at past flings with women. See Rosie flirt with coming out on Will & Grace. See Rosie come out. Come out, Rosie, come out! See, Rosie, it's not that bad. See everyone yawn. See me pull my hair out (insert irony) because another celebrity waits until no one cares or everyone already suspects.

All kidding aside, this is a fine line to walk. To come out or not to come out. When to come out. Not to mention the activists who get angry that people don't come out sooner. We should not look at celebrities as role models. They are only human with the same insecurities and frailties that help to shape us all. There is probably more acceptance of sexual minorities because the average Joe and Jo have been open and honest with those they care about, than knowing that Elton John or the Indigo Girls are out. Some of my gbt friends are crying -what took Rosie so long? Other straight friends thought she was already out. Who cares. Be open and honest about yourself and if you need a role model look no further than our local activists and New City Council.

COUNTER-POINT BY JAN ELSASSOR

Living in society requires that we participate in a social contract; an agreement to abide by certain rules that guide our behavior. Subcultures have their own addendum to that social contract that emphasizes protecting and supporting other members of the same subculture. The social contract for gays and lesbians has included the expectation that we will not out one another; sometimes to each other, and especially to the straight world. In recent years, however, as gays and lesbians have come out and become more visible, we question whether gay and lesbian celebrities should shatter the closet door; or even more challenging, whether we should shatter the door for them.

Whether or not a celebrity comes out is mostly a personal matter. I feel the gay and lesbian addendum to the social contract compels us to respect a celebrity's decision to remain closeted unless circumstances exist that make outing a celebrity permissible. Two examples:

a. The celebrity persecutes the gay and lesbian community. John Paulk-the ex-gay poster child caught frequenting a gay bar -- is an example of a person who was outed to prevent him from inflicting pain on the gay and lesbian community. By perpetrating the fraud that his sexual orientation was a moral choice, he brought untold suffering on gays and lesbians struggling to accept their own sexual orientation.

b. The celebrity earns his/her living off of the gay and lesbian community. Is Sean Hayes gay? I don't have a clue. In a quotation to a reporter inquiring about his sexual orientation, Mr. Hayes stated that his sexual orientation is his own business. True enough; though one hardly ever hears heterosexuals defend their right to keep their sexual orientation private. Yet as an actor who built his career on gay roles and with the proud support of the gay and lesbian community, it is deplorable that he ducked the question.

What's That About?

Readers write or email
"What's That About?"
editors with questions about gay and lesbian issues.

VFP received an email expressing disbelief that Senator Rick Santorum would actually support the organization claiming to be actively working to pass an anti same-sex marriage amendment to the US constitution. We offered to fax the Santorum letter to the email author, but he suggested instead that we print it in VFP. We thought about it seriously. In the interim we received several more messages that people in the community have received these letters from Santorum condemning the gay community and asking for funding for the anti-gay organization that paid for the mailing. Even the minister of a local gay-friendly church, has told us that Santorum sent him a special anti-gay letter just for churches.

We have decided not to print Santorum's letter because it will take up too much room that is better used for positive news of our own community. You can read about it in last month's VFP. If you would like to see the letter, we will fax it to you. Call us at 610-432-5449 if you wish us to do so. The Editors

To Steve Libby, I am writing you regarding your list of the best LGBT TV and Movies of the year (Feb. VFP). While I have to agree with your TV choices, I was down right disappointed by your Movie list. I don't think any list of the Best GLBT Movies can be complete without Hedwig and the Angry Inch.

Not only was this the audience choice award winner at Sundance, but John Mitchell won for best director at the same festival. Here is a film conceived by two openly gay men which deals with transgender issues like no other film ever has. I think you were mistaken to leave it off your list. I am somewhat biased since I was fortunate enough to see the original cast off-broadway. If you have not seen it, I highly recommend it.

Yours, Jerry Schmidt

Dear Queen's Acres Guy,

Thanks for your response to the "best of" list. Unfortunately I had not viewed Hedwig prior to making the list. Upon viewing this emotional and original film, I would certainly recommend it to everyone. I hereby appoint you national Hedwig fan club president. Ta-da! Thanks, Steve

QUOTE

"Among the varieties of American innocence that were lost on September 11, perhaps the most intriguing was the mass discovery of what it feels like to be hated. 'How can they hate us,' people asked, 'just because we're Americans, when they don't even know us?' Well, I thought, welcome to my world. People hate homosexuals all the time, across great distances, from places where they feel threatened by us even though most of us would never contemplate living there."

SCOTT SAYS

By Scott Laubner

IT'S OSCAR TIME

Opulence returns to television on March 24 with the 74th Academy Awards show. Cora, a coworker, asked me, "Who do you want to win best actress, Halle Berry, Nicole Kidman, or Renee Zellweger?" I said, "Honey, I'm queer. Judy Garland. Audrey Hepburn. Joan Crawford. Bette Davis. All the actresses I follow are dead. Let's watch 'Whatever Happened to Baby Jane?' the feel-good movie of 1962."

If I had to pick an actress to win an Oscar this year it would be Dame Judi Dench. Dame Judi, if you're reading this, I'm rooting for you. Maybe I have an attraction for English actresses. I told Cora I liked Maggie Smith and Glenda Jackson. Cora said she liked them when they were on TV on "Charlie's Angels."

One of the most deliciously bizarre sequences I ever saw was that opening number of Snow White with Rob Lowe. Maybe they could reprise that this year with Cinderella and Charlie Sheen.

In the best supporting actor category I am rooting for out and proud Sir Ian McKellen for his portrayal of Gandalf in The Lord of the Rings. That movie was mesmerizing.

And so my little chipmunk readers I wish you good luck in your office Oscar pools. This year I'm taking Cora to the cleaners.

PRIDE NEEDS YOU...OR ELSE

Pride of LV is struggling & can use your help. Last year's storm hurt their budget & they may need to cancel the parade or drastically reduce the festival if they do not get some new volunteers & funding. Pride really needs new people to step up & help out. This is the time to give back to your community. Every committee is also in need of new talent & ideas. If you are wondering what you can do, please read on & come to the next Pride Festival Planning Meeting on Tuesday, March 12 at 7 pm at the FACT office (located on N.12th St. in Allentown, next door to Candida's Bar).

The Film festival needs people to help pick out new films & coordinate locations & speakers. The Entertainment committee needs people to seek out performers, negotiate contracts, acquire sponsorships, organize shows & provide help with stage management. The Vendor & Advertising Committee needs people to entice new businesses to come to the festival & follow up with previous vendors. The PR Committee needs those with a flair to design posters & handouts. Graphic & web designers are encouraged to lend their support to producing the printed Pride Guide & Pride's web site. General volunteers are needed to go to events, clubs & businesses to distribute information & sign up new members. The Parade committee needs people to round up groups to march, design & create a Pride float, secure cars for select honorees & help coordinate on the day of the event. Hands are also needed at the festival for set-up, booth staffing & cleanup.

Lastly, but definitely not least, Pride is desperately in need of a creative & responsible fundraising chair to organize benefits and other ways to increase Pride's funding, so the festival can go on! If you are interested in this position or another board position, please contact Pride immediately. If you want to learn more about anything listed here or sign up to volunteer, please contact Pride at 610-770-6200 or by email at pridelv@hotmail.com. ### AMERICAN ACADEMY OF PEDIATRICS SUPPORTS SECOND-PARENT ADOPTION BY SAME-SEX PARENTS

Here is the text of their statement:

"Children deserve to know that their relationships with both of their parents are stable and legally recognized. This applies to all children, whether their parents are of the same or opposite sex. The American Academy of Pediatrics recognizes that a considerable body of professional literature provides evidence that children with parents who are homosexual can have the same advantages and the same expectations for health, adjustment, and development as can children whose parents are heterosexual. When 2 adults participate in parenting a child, they and the child deserve the serenity that comes with legal recognition.

Children born or adopted into families headed by partners who are of the same sex usually have only 1 biologic or adoptive legal parent. The other partner in a parental role is called the "coparent" or "second parent." Because these families and children need the permanence and security that are provided by having 2 fully sanctioned and legally defined parents, the Academy supports the legal adoption of children by coparents or second parents. Denying legal parent status through adoption to coparents or second parents prevents these children from enjoying the psychological and legal security that comes from having 2 willing, capable, and loving parents.

Several states have considered or enacted legislation sanctioning second-parent adoption by partners of the same sex. In addition, legislative initiatives assuring legal status equivalent to marriage for gay and lesbian partners, such as the law approving civil unions in Vermont, can also attend to providing security and permanence for the children of those partnerships.

Many states have not yet considered legislative actions to ensure the security of children whose parents are gay or lesbian. It is important that a broad ethical mandate exist nationally that will guide the courts in providing necessary protection for children through coparent adoption.

The legal sanction provided by coparent adoption accomplishes the following: 1. Guarantees that the second parent's custody rights and responsibilities will be protected if the first parent were to die or become incapacitated. Moreover, second-parent adoption protects the child's legal right of relationships with both parents. In the absence of coparent adoption, members of the family of the legal parent, should he or she become incapacitated, might successfully challenge the surviving coparent's rights to continue to parent the child, thus causing the child to lose both parents.

2. Protects the second parent's rights to custody and visitation if the couple separates. Likewise, the child's right to maintain relationships with both parents after separation, viewed as important to a positive outcome in separation or divorce.

3. Establishes the requirement for child support from both parents in the event of the parents' separation.

4. Ensures the child's eligibility for health benefits from both parents.

5. Provides legal grounds for either parent to provide consent for medical care and to make education, health care, and other important decisions on behalf of the child.

6. Creates the basis for financial security for children in the event of the death of either parent by ensuring eligibility to all appropriate entitlements, such as Social Security survivors benefits.

On the basis of the acknowledged desirability that children have and maintain a continuing relationship with 2 loving and supportive parents, the Academy recommends that pediatricians do the following: Be familiar with professional literature regarding gay and lesbian parents and their children. Support the right of every child and family to the financial, psychological, and legal security that results from having legally recognized parents who are committed to each other and to the welfare of their children. Advocate for initiatives that establish permanency through coparent or second-parent adoption for children of same-sex partners through the judicial system, legislation, and community education. "Statement by American Academy of Pediatrics on coparent or second-parent adoption by same-sex parents excerpted from PEDIATRICS Vol. 109 No. 2 February 2002, pp. 339-340.

QUOTES FROM THE LIGHTER SIDE #1

"My sister, a physical education major at a NY state college, said her friends told her I was gay. It was one of the topics of their group house dinner conversations. "Is Mary's sister gay? Discuss." I reminded her that she used to call me a big fat queer. She said she would try it in other areas and since then has called me a big fat millionaire."

QUOTES FROM THE LIGHTER SIDE #4

"I come from a very typical Jewish family ---a doctor, a lawyer and a lesbian comic. When I decided to come out of the closet to my family, I thought I would do it where I felt most comfortable, in a Chinese restaurant...where I rigged the fortune cookies. I invited the whole extended family and sat my parents at opposite ends of the table, and they both got the same fortune: "Your son-in-law will be a turkey baster."

---Comic-Lisa Geduldig
